

Mr. Jason Naud

Graduated in International Studies from the Université de Montréal, Mr. Jason Naud accumulates more than eight years in the Government of Quebec. He has acted as an international affairs advisor in various ministries responsible for education, immigration and science and technology. He led, among other things, the research and science component of the Prime Minister's official visit to China (2014) and Mexico (2015).

Currently, Mr. Naud is Coordinator and specializes in the Smart Cities sector within the International Partnerships Division of the Ministry of Economy, Science and Innovation. He organized the participation of Québec companies, municipalities and research centers in international fairs such as Barcelona Smart City Expo World Congress, Washington Smart Cities Week, Smart Cities NYC and Kyoto Smart City Expo. He has been working for many years on developing relations between Quebec and Asia.
